

Australian Soldiers

Australian soldiers wore a tunic, known as the “jacket service dress” with kaki breeches.

Because the breeches were short, they covered their legs from ankle to knee with a spiral of wollen cloth called puttees.

Under their tunic, they had a soft grey flannel shirt, and on their feet, a pair of tan ankle-boots.

Of course, we can't miss their special hat, tucked up on the left side to let them wear their rifle on their left shoulder, with a fur lining.
